Dr. Holloway Asks Levy Court to Collect Outstanding Taxes

STATE BOARD WITHOUT FUNDS

Dr. H. V. Holloway, state superintendent of Public Instruction, addressed the Levy Court Tuesday relative to the outstanding school taxes now unpaid. He explained that he had addressed the Levy Courts of Kent and Sussex counties on the same subject. The courts he said had power to collect these moneys.

The State Board, Dr. Holloway said had no money at this time and it was necessary to collect the outstanding taxes in order to pay bills.

Commissioner Ball, who is a school trustee, asked Dr. Holloway if he could purchase needed desks. Dr. Holloway replied that $50 a teacher was the amount allowed for replacements and repairs, and that if the county collected the taxes the board would have sufficient funds to carry on its work. The outstanding taxes in New Castle county, he said, amount to $20,000 and in Kent county to $9,000. The outstanding bills of the board the doctor said amounted to about $18,000.

Commissioner Buckson called the attention of the court to the school house at St. Georges which has one room without windows. The only light entering comes in over a transom. In this school Mr. Buckson said three children are using one desk.

Dr. Holloway later held a conference with the Commissioners and it was decided to hold a conference with the tax collectors of the county next Tuesday. The question of collecting the outstanding taxes will be discussed at that time.

OBITUARY

Charles Kolb

The body of Charles Kolb was laid to rest in the Forest Cemetery at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Kolb who was employed by the Baker Cannery Co., was taken sick about ten days ago. Mr. Baker was making arrangements to send him to the hospital, but before he could be removed he passed to his rest. Efforts made to get in touch with his relatives or friends were unavailing.

Deceased was a very faithful and conscientious employee. He had worked at the canneries for a number of years.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. W. J. Wilson. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. John Townley, of Forest Presbyterian Church.

A. B. Caddell

A. B. Caddell died at his home, in Chesapeake City, Md., on Sunday morning after a ten days' illness. Mr. Caddell was about fifty-five years of age and is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter. For several years Mr. Caddell has been Superintendent of the boatyard of the Southern Transportation Company.

Funeral services were held at his late home on Wednesday afternoon, and interment was made in Bethel Cemetery.

Corporal John Hager

The remains of Corporal John Hager, who made the supreme sacrifice in France in 1918, reached the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Hager, Chesapeake City, last Friday. Services were held Sunday afternoon, and interment made at Bethel Cemetery with military honors, conducted by the American Legion and Company E.

Avoid Hessian Fly in Wheat

The Hessian fly is the most injurious insect enemy known to wheat in Delaware. Once it affects a wheat crop there is no remedy. The only remedy is preventive and that is to keep the fly out of wheat by seeding at the proper time. Wheat should not be seeded in Delaware prior to October 1, except in the rolling section of northern New Castle County. The approximate earliest dates of planting for the counties are as follows: New Castle County, October 1 to 5; Kent County, October 3 to 8, and Sussex, October 5 to 10. Keep the following point in mind: Practice crop rotation. Do not sow wheat on wheat stubble land if possible to avoid it. Destroy all volunteer wheat by digging or some other method. Plow land to be seeded to wheat early and prepare well; thoroughly compacting the seed bed. Use good seed. Fertilize. Seed wheat after the fly free dates above.

Prophets Predict a Mild Winter

Sussex county weather prophets say that the Pennsylvanians who have predicted a severe winter are all wrong, for the winter will be a mild one. They base their predictions that there are few acorns, corn tassels are thin and that there are few cedar berries, all proofs, according to their deductions, that nature has not provided bountifully for birds or squirrels, and that, therefore there will be a mild winter.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, September 25th, 1921. The 18th Sunday after Trinity.

10.30. Morning Prayer and Sermon. 11.45. Sunday School.

7.30. Evening prayer and sermon. This is going to be a critical year in business, in statecraft, in education, in religious life and work. We have the word of all the leaders in these departments—Mr. Gary, President Harding, President W. D. Scott, and Presiding Bishop, Gailor. Then let us go into the year with a will, with energy and zeal, with a high purpose and a cheery resolve to make it the best year in every department of St. Anne's Parish.

Bring your Offering. Do you remember the famous reply of Artemus Ward to the man who stood in the front of his wax-works shop and asked if he could enter with out paying? "No," said Ward, "you can't do that, but you can pay without entering." Some church people do that, and it's a mistake. They pay without entering. They support the church with their purse but not in person. Their contribution reaches the treasurer, but their feet seldom enter the church. Remember the words of the Apostle, "We want not yours, but you!" It takes money, of course, to maintain the church, and the treasurer is always in need of funds. Moreover, it's better to pay and enter than to do neither. But it is YOU we want. "The gift without the giver is bare." It is part of the service and a vital, sacred part, for every worshiper to put his gifts on the altar and there offer them together with himself, his soul and body, as a reasonable, holy and living sacrifice unto God.

The Fall meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in St. Peter's Church, Smyrna, early in October.

The Centennial of the Board of Missions will be celebrated on Sunday, November 6th. We hope to commemorate the occasion in St. Anne's Church with special sermons.

Boy Scout meeting, Friday, 7 P. M. The increased attendance and interest at all of our meetings manifest a healthy and growing spirit in our church. To maintain and develop our spiritual vigor, we must keep in close touch with the Physician of our souls.

Our meetings are all planned for that purpose. There is no valid excuse for a postponement of our trust with Him. Forest Church announces to you this invitation "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Remember the announcement in last week's paper about our Sunday School Rally. The place is Forest Presbyterian Church Sunday School room, and the hour is 11.45 A. M., Sept. 25th. LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

The autumnal equinox occurred Friday, September 23rd, and fall began.

The largest crop of corn ever harvested in Delaware is now being saved. An average of fifty bushels to the acre is being picked.

James T. Shallcross, of near Middletown, sold a small farm belonging to Clarence Wood, near Blackbird, to Harvey Carey, of Odessa.

The ladies of the Mite and Missionary Societies of Forest Presbyterian Church will hold a Bake on Saturday, the first day of October, in the vacant room in the Opera House building.

Although the prospects are that there will be record entrance classes in both Delaware College and the Women's College, officials of the University of Delaware are planning to take care of all new students.

Rev. Dr. Frank Herson, of Newark, will preach at Bethel M. E. Church Monday and Tuesday evenings, October 3d and 4th. Dr. Herson is a power in the pulpit, and everybody is invited to come out and hear him.

Rev. William Little, of Atlantic City, N. J., has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church of St. Georges and will take charge Sunday. He will also have charge of the Odessa and Port Penn Presbyterian Churches.

The stone road has been opened all the way from Blackbird to Armstrong's Corner within two miles of Smyrna and all detours are taken off. The opening of the road to the public last Saturday was the cause of much joy to motorists.

There are now only three classes with cut teachers in the public schools of rural New Castle county, it was stated by Wilbur H. Jump, assistant to H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of schools. In all, the county has 72 schools requiring 17 teachers.

Esau Johnson, colored, of St. Georges was arraigned before Mayor Bright, this week, accused of threatening bodily injury to his wife, carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. He was acquitted of the two former charges, but pleaded guilty to the latter and was fined $5.

Three valuable farms belonging to the estate of Benjamin A. Hazell, of Smyrna, were sold last week by the executors. Malcolm Burris purchased the farm on which he lives west of Clayton for $25,500. The farms in tenure of Denney Walker and Edward Nelson were purchased by Harry Slaughter, of Smyrna, for $29,000. These farms are nicely equipped and in a high state of cultivation.

Negro Shot in Row

One negro escaped and four others were arrested by Officer Walker at Odessa Sunday night, following a quarrel, in which one of them was shot in both legs with a shot gun. Here is the story as the authorities were told:

Four negroes, Robert White, William Ray and one unknown, headed by Tony Cable, were said to have gotten in an automobile with the intention of attacking Weyman Bradley, colored, living outside of Odessa.

Bradley heard of their approach, and arming himself with a shotgun, stood in the door of his house and defied the negroes to enter, threatening to shoot. White, who is tall and heavy, paid no attention to the warning, and threw himself at Bradley. Bradley fired, the shot striking White in both knees. Even then White grabbed Bradley and started to beat him, when passersby interfered.

White, Cable and Ray were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Sparks at Odessa on charges of assault and fined $5 a.d costs each. White then swore out a warrant charging Bradley with assault and battery.

To Sue For Income Tax

Announcement was made recently that State Treasurer Fisher will have executions issued on all judgments obtained against delinquent State income tax payers, and an attempt will be made to collect the amounts due.

At the same time all outstanding accounts for taxes due will be placed in the hands of the attorney-general for collection.

In view of the fact that many delinquents have been frank enough to notify the collectors of their belief that the extra income tax collections is illegal, and that they prefer taking chances of prosecution rather than paying over money and waiting until the Legislature sees fit to return it, the State Treasurer proposes to go ahead and force collections, thus enabling anyone so desiring to take a test case to court.

BASE BALL

The Middletown base ball team closed a very successful season last Saturday, by defeating the Townsend club by the score of 7 to 2. This was the final game between these two teams and ended the series, Middletown having won 2 out of the 3 games played. The local sluggers begun their run getting in the first inning and continued to pile up hits off of Winters, who was on the firing line for the visitors, until the sixth inning, when he was relieved by Money, who pitched the last two innings and allowed his opponents but one hit. Carson who has pitched all three games of the series for the home team was at his best, allowing the visitors but five hits, while his support was perfect. Davis, Slaughter, Carson, Simpson and McDaniel led the batting for Middletown, while Winters and Watts succeeded in making two hits each for the visitors.

About 700 fans witnessed the game, and yelled themselves hoarse when their different favorites would make a hit or sensational play.

Turner, the Townsend shortstop, was knocked out in the fourth inning in a collision with Scott and was forced to retire. The score:

May Establish Agency

The re-establishment of a Federal employment agency in Wilmington, similar to that which was operated for sometime after the World War, is now being planned by the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor.

The inauguration of such an employment agency will be of great value to the unemployed. The thousands of idle workers can register free of cost and employers can get in touch with types of workers they need.

Serious Cutting Affray

A serious cutting affray occurred on the public highway, south of St. Georges, last Sunday morning, when William Lomax attacked Harry Moore, with a hedge knife, inflicting a large wound in Moore's head and cutting one of his arms. Lomax, who is the son-in-law of Moore secured the knife from the farm where he was employed and proceeded up the road looking for his victim, and when he encountered Moore slashed him several times with the dangerous weapon.

Constable Staats, of Red Lion Hundred, was notified and arrested Lomax, who was given a hearing before Magistrate Stevens, who held him under $3000 bail, in default of which he was committed to the Workhouse.

325 INDICTED IN W. VA. MINE WAR

200 Others Are Charged With Insurrection

MINER KILLED FOR SLIGHT

Indictments Followed An Investigation Of Recent Disturbances On The Logan-Boone County Border.

Logan, W. Va.—Three hundred and twenty-five names were included in a blanket indictment, charging murder, returned by a Logan county special grand jury.

The indictments followed an investigation of recent disturbances on the Logan-Boone county border. Among the names are those of C. F. Keeney and Fred Mooney, president and secretary, respectively, of District No. 17, United Mine Workers of America, and H. W. Blizard, also a United Mine Workers' official.

In addition, 200 indictments charging insurrection and "pistol-toting" were returned.

The captives in most instances will be sent to the Sheriff of Kanawha and Boone counties, where a majority of the indicted men reside, for service. The blanket indictment charging those named with being principals and accessories to the killing of John Gore, deputy sheriff of Logan county, was based on an alleged violation of the Redman act. That act classifies such deaths as murder in the first degree.

Gore was killed August 29 in an exchange of shots between armed men and deputy sheriffs in the eastern part of Logan county during the attempted march across that county of a number of men who had announced their intention to proceed into Mingo county, and there protest State martial law invoked several months ago.

The special grand jury further held in the indictment that a "conspiracy to inflict bodily harm and punishment" had existed and that as "the result of such conspiracy Gore had come to his death."

The remainder of the indictments charged "conspiracy to foment revolution and insurrection," and "the carrying of weapons in violation of the Johnson law."

Keeney and Mooney have been sought for the last three weeks, following their indictment at Williamson on charges growing out of a fatal shooting affray in that county during disorders last May.

After making his return to Circuit Judge Robert Bland, the jury was discharged and the captives immediately issued.

While no announcement has been made of the date on which the men will be brought to trial, it was believed generally that the cases will be taken up at the October term of Circuit Court.

Apart from the union officials, the names of those indicted were not made public.

Charleston, W. Va.—Breece Tackett, 30, miner, employed on Cabin Creek, was shot and instantly killed at Kayford because, police charge, he expressed his "unsympathetic tendencies" toward the recent attempted invasion of miners into Logan county.

John Adams, of Kayford, and William McKenzie, of Cabin Creek, were arrested charged with Tackett's murder, and are held without bond in the county jail.

Washington.—Members of the Maryland delegation in Congress are in receipt of communications from a number of Baltimore real estate men urging the submission of an amendment to the Federal Constitution permitting Federal taxation of incomes received from State and municipal bonds.

The point made in these communications is that such taxation would release a great deal of money for investment in mortgages, homes and business enterprises which now seeks refuge from taxation through investment in tax-free securities.

Dauntless Steams Into Harbor

Of Lieutenant Commander Coll

Consigned To Atlantic.

New York.—Resting in flag-shrouded caskets, covered with masses of flowers and guarded by armed men of a friendly, foreign nation, the bodies of Commander Louis H. Maxfield and 14 of his comrades—victims of the ZR-2 disaster—arrived home on the British cruiser Dauntless.

It was a far different homecoming than the victims had anticipated when they sailed several months ago for England to prepare and bring back the monster dirigible, the disaster to which on a trial flight, sent 42 heroic men of two nations to their untimely death.

Far out at sea the Dauntless was met by a destroyer division of the United States Navy. As it neared port the escort was augmented by a fleet of seaplanes, representing the arm of the service for which the victims gave their lives. As the funeral ship came up the harbor the forts thundered a salute, church bells tolled on the Brooklyn and Staten Island shores and passing craft dipped their colors in reverential salute.

At each corner of the deck as the vessel was warped into its pier stood an armed sentry with head bowed and arms reversed. Forward of the platform was a non-commissioned officer, and aft an officer in full-dress uniform having a rank equal to that of Commander Maxfield. Both of these officers stood at attention with head uncovered until the caskets were finally removed from the ship.

A silence almost sepulchral in effect hung over the funeral ship as she proceeded up the harbor. Except for the barking of her guns, as they spoke 21 times in the usual salute of courtesy given by war craft entering a foreign port, the only noise was the swish of water at her bow, the occasional clanking of a chain, or a command given in muffled tones.

TO "CLEAN UP" MOVIE COLONY.

Prohibition Agents Seek Source Of Booze For Parties.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A drive to "clean up" the Hollywood motion-picture colony was started here, as a result of the "Fatty" Arbuckle disclosures.

Robert McCormick, Federal Prohibition Director, sent 10 dry detectives to Hollywood to probe and expose booze scandals. They expect to ascertain where the wilder spirits among the movie people have been getting the liquor for their sensational parties. The Los Angeles women's vigilance committee has been ready to make an expose of conditions. This committee was said to have placed a number of women as "extras" in the studios to investigate the treatment and temptation of young girls.

U. S. FEEDS 10,000 CHILDREN.

Steamer Gothenburg Brings 3,000 Tons
Of Food.

Petrograd.—Ten thousand famished Russian children were fed here through the generosity of America. Further supplies are expected to arrive in a day or two, when the agents of the American Relief Association will be able to feed 50,000 children in this city and suburbs.

The relief steamer, Gothenburg, came into port Wednesday with 3,000 tons of food. Workmen, appointed by the local Soviet, unloaded the vessel without pay.

ACORNS POISON CHILDREN.

One Dies From Feast, But Other Two Will Recover.

Waukegan, Ill.—Three children, aged 5, 6 and 7 years, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hammond, of Lake Bluff, were seriously poisoned by eating acorns. The oldest son, William, died in agony, but physicians were able to save Clarence and Elmer. From their stomachs the physicians removed a quart of acorns, practically undigested. The youngsters had never seen acorns before and mistook them for chestnuts.

26 NATIONS FAVOR ARMAMENT LIMIT

Reply to League's Proposal to Keep Two Years' Plan

SEVEN ANSWERS NEGATIVE

Evasive Responses Come From Spain,
Japan And Rumania On Query
—All Agree To General Principle.

New York.—Seven of the 26 nations that have answered the appeal of the League of Nations for an agreement to keep the military and naval expenditures budgets for the next two years within the appropriations for the current year have replied in the negative, says an official report from Geneva received by the League of Nations news bureau. They are South Africa, Brazil, France, Finland, Yugoslavia, Poland and Greece.

These seven States, the report explains, all agree heartily to the general principle of limiting armaments. Reservations accompany almost every one of the affirmative answers, it adds, declaring that the main reservation, which occurs in almost every answer, emphasizes the impossibility for any one nation to lead the way to disarmament without regard to what is done by other nations.

Two governments, Austria and Bulgaria, answer that the question has been settled for them by the peace treaties, which regulate the extent of their defensive establishments.

"Fourteen governments," the report continues, "accept the proposition with only such conditions as have been indicated above. These are Bolivia, China, Guatemala, Australia, Canada, Belgium, Great Britain, New Zealand, India, Italy, Holland, Chile, Denmark and Norway."

"Spain, Japan and Rumania have given evasive answers, the spirit of which, however, indicates unmistakable agreement with the purpose of the appeal. Rumania agrees in practice, but points to the precariousness of its present situation in regard to Russia. Spain agrees also, but points out the uncertainty of the budget as a measure of the extent of armaments."

9 KILLED, 7 INJURED IN FIRE.

Three More Men Are Reported As Missing.

Philadelphia.—Nine men are known to have been killed and more than a score injured, several of whom are expected to die, in the second serious fire to visit the big Point Breeze plant of the Atlantic Refining Company in a month. Three more men are reported missing and many have been burned to death beneath flaming tanks of petroleum. The fire was preceded by a terrific explosion, which killed several workmen instantly and drenched others with flaming oil. Only prompt action by the company's organized rescue squads prevented the death list from mounting higher, witness declared.

CABRERA TO GET NEW TRIAL.

Sentence Of Death On Ex-President Of Guatemala Is Stayed.

Washington.—The carrying out of the death sentence imposed by a Guatemala court on Estrada Cabrera, the deposed President of the republic, will be prevented by a decree to be issued by President Herrera, the Guatemalan Foreign Minister has advised the American Legation at Guatemala City.

Assurances received by the legation were reported to the State Department together with the announcement that Cabrera has been found guilty of murder by a lower court of the island and sentenced to die. The announcement said that counsel for Cabrera had determined on an appeal to the higher courts.

WELLS ADVISES HIGHER RATES.

Shipping Board Official Says No Steamship Line Is Making Money.

New York.—"No shipping line is making money with the present scales of passenger and freight rates," said George Wells, traffic manager of the United States Shipping Board.

"I advise that all lines increase their freight rates, so they can continue in business," he added. Wells denied that the United States Shipping Board intended to cut its ocean rates.

"The usual fall out in passenger rates has gone into effect on almost all lines," Wells said, but he doubted that any line at this time would cut its freight rates.

PROHIBITION AGENT ARRESTED.

Official Charged With Conspiring To Defraud.

Jersey City, N. J.—George S. Ridner, a prohibition enforcement agent attached to the Newark (N. J.) office, was arrested on a warrant charging him with conspiracy to defraud and soliciting and accepting a bribe in connection with the activities of bootleggers in smuggling liquor into ports along the coast.

WOMAN, 70, ASKS SEPARATION.

Says Husband Was Ideal Until He Started Going To Movies.

New York.—Peter Andina, 70, and his wife Beatrice, also 70, married in Lima, Peru, 41 years ago, may part company. Mrs. Andina said Peter made an ideal husband until a year ago, when he started going to the motion-picture shows and became too cross to live with. So she asked for a legal separation.

BUYING FOR CHRISTMAS ON LARGE SCALE.

New York.—Santa Claus is preparing for Christmas on a prosperity basis.

A canvass of the old gentleman's personal representatives in this country revealed that they are counting on one of the biggest holiday distributions of gifts in years.

Retailers in all sections, it was said, have begun to place orders for the Christmas trade "on a most hopeful scale"—and this applies to dry goods, furniture, jewelry, toys and all other forms of gifts.

Lew Hahn, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said buying indicated Santa Claus would be "pretty fairly busy."

"Retail prices will average close to 30 per cent. lower than last year," Hahn said. "As a result, even though dealers do a much larger business than last year, their transactions in dollars and cents may not be so big. The majority of dealers are proceeding on the theory that the holiday trade will be good."

MORE AUDACITY AND NERVE NEEDED

World Conference to Fight For Militant Christianity

PROHIBITION IS REVIEWED

Bishop Cannon Calls On England And France To Follow Steps Of America—Reviews
Prohibition.

London.—The World's Methodist Conference in session here drew up an address for circulation in Methodist churches throughout the world calling for "aggressive militant Christianity." The address read:

"We need more nerve and more audacity. We summon you to aggressive militant Christianity. We welcome the emancipation of women and hail them joyfully as fellow-workers. We have heard the call for a union of churches. Our first duty is to heal our own divisions and to call our Methodist family to greater unity than we now enjoy."

The conference sent fraternal greetings to the Assembly of German Evangelical churches now meeting in Stuttgart and adopted a resolution thanking the American Government for providing a site in Washington for a statue to Bishop Francis Asbury, considered the founder of Methodism in the United States.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Methodist Episcopal Church South, reviewed the prohibition struggle in the United States and analyzed its results, saying: "The inescapable fact remains that the liquor traffic has forever been branded as an outlaw by the Government of the United States."

Bishop Cannon declared that if another war should come, demanding that sons come from prohibition homes in America to fight in England, France or other countries, one of the most important factors would be whether the American and English or French Governments would co-operate to offer the same protection to the American youth from drink as he receives under the American flag. He said the Americans entered the late war not for any sordid reason, but because the American people believed in justice and righteousness.

FARMER SLAYS HIS TENANT.

Dispute Arises Over Notice Given Latter.

Keller, Va.—Edward Phillips, 50 years old, a well-known farmer of near Wachapreague, was shot and killed by John Adams, also residing near Wachapreague. One bullet took effect in the head and another in the stomach. Adams was shot in the arm and was removed to Salisbury Hospital.

Adams was owner of the farm occupied by Phillips and is said to have given him notice to move. Phillips went to the home of Adams and a quarrel started which resulted in the killing. Adams served as a lieutenant in the Navy during the late war. Phillips is survived by a widow and two children. The men had been friendly neighbors until a short time ago.

FIND TWINS IN SUITCASE.

Detroit Police Seek Woman Who Left
Them On Ship.

Detroit.—Feeble cries emanating from a locked suitcase on the upper deck of one of the Detroit-Windsor ferry steamers led to the discovery of twin baby girls, several weeks old. Police are searching for a woman who brought the suitcase aboard and, they declare, apparently abandoned the babies to suffocation. The infants were taken to a hospital, where they were reported out of danger.

CLUB TO AID ARMS PARLEY.

Reporters Will Tender Their Services
To President.

Washington.—A council of 14 Washington correspondents, composed of officers of the seven newspaper men's clubs and departmental organizations here, was formed to advise and assist Government officials in the arrangement of publicity facilities at the conference on limitation of armament.

Bull-Dog Drummond

The Adventures of a Demobilized Officer Who Found Peace Dull

By Cyril McNeile
"Sapper"

Copyright by Geo. H. Doran Co.

"Right. Throw your gun on the floor." Drummond picked up the weapon and put it in his pocket; then he rang the bell. "I had hoped," he murmured, "for a larger gathering, but one cannot have everything."

Save to Peterson, who understood, if only dimly, what had happened, the thing had come as such a complete surprise that even the sudden entrance of twenty masked men, who ranged themselves in single rank behind their chairs, failed to stir the meeting. It merely seemed in keeping with what had gone before.

"I shall not detain you long, gentlemen," began Hugh, suavely. "Your general appearance and the warmth of the weather have combined to produce in me a desire for sleep. But before I hand you over to the care of the sportsmen who stand so patiently behind you, there are one or two remarks I wish to make. Let me say at once that on the subject of Capital and Labor I am supremely ignorant. You will therefore be spared any dissertation on the subject. But from an exhaustive study of the ledger which now lies upon the table, and a fairly intimate knowledge of its author's movements, I and my friends have been put to the inconvenience of treading on you."

"There are many things, we know, which are wrong in this jolly old country of ours; but given time and the right methods I am sufficiently optimistic to believe that they could be put right. That, however, would not suit your book. You dislike the right method, because it leaves all of you much where you were before. Every single one of you—with the sole possible exception of you, Mr. Terrance, and you're mad—is playing with revolution for his own ends: to make money out of it—to gain power. . . ."

"Let us start with Peterson—your leader. How much did you say he demanded, Mr. Potts, as the price of revolution?"

With a strangled cry Peterson sprang up as the American millionaire, removing his mask, stepped forward. "Two hundred and fifty thousand pounds, your swine, was what you asked me." The millionaire stood confronting his tormentor, who dropped back in his chair with a groan. "And when I refused, you tortured me. Look at my thumb."

With a cry of horror the others sitting at the table looked at the mangled flesh, and then at the man who had done it. This, even to their mind, was going too far.

"Then there was the same sum," continued Drummond, "to come from Hocking, the American cotton man—half German by birth; Steinemann, the German coal man; Von Gratz, the German steel man. Is that not so, Peterson?" It was an arrow at a venture, but it hit the mark, and Peterson nodded.

"So one million pounds was the stake this benefactor of humanity was playing for," sneered Drummond. "One million pounds, as the mere price of a nation's life-blood. . . . But at any rate he had the merit of playing big, whereas the rest of you scum, and the other beauties so ably catalogued in that book, messed about at his beck and call for packets of bull's eyes. Perhaps you labored under the delusion that you were fooling him, but the whole lot of you are so d-d crooked that you probably thought of nothing but your own filthy skins."

"Listen to me," Hugh Drummond's voice took on a deep, commanding ring, and against their will the four men looked at the broad, powerful soldier, whose sincerity shone clear in his face. "Not by revolutions and direct action will you make this island of ours right—though I am fully aware that that is the last thing you would wish to see happen. But with your brains, and for your own unscrupulous ends, you gull the workman into believing it. And he, because you can talk with your tongues in your cheeks, is led astray. He believes you will give him Utopia; whereas, in reality, you are leading him to hell. And you know it. Evolution is our only chance—not revolution; but you, and others like you, stand to gain more by the latter."

His hand dropped to his side, and he grinned.

"Quite a break for me," he remarked. "I'm getting hoarse. I'm now going to hand you four over to the boys. There's an admirable, but somewhat muddy pond outside, and I'm sure you'd like to look for newts. If any of you want to summon me for assault and battery, my name is Drummond—Captain Drummond of Half Moon street. But I warn you that that book will be handed into Scotland Yard tonight. Out with 'em, boys, and give 'em hell."

"And now, Carl Peterson," he remarked, as the door closed behind the last of the struggling prophets of a new world, "it is time that you and I settled our little account, isn't it?"

The master-criminal rose and stood facing him. Apparently he had completely recovered himself; the hand with which he lit his cigar was as steady as a rock.

"I congratulate you, Captain Drummond," he remarked suavely. "I confess I have no idea how you managed to escape from the somewhat cramped position I left you in last night, or how you have managed to install your own men in this house. But I have even less idea how you discovered about Hocking and the other two."

calment it is necessary to change other things besides your face and figure. You must change your mannerisms and unconscious little tricks. No—I won't tell you what it is that gave you away. You can ponder over it in prison."

"So you mean to hand me over to the police, do you?" said Peterson slowly.

"I see no other course open to me," replied Drummond.

The sudden opening of the door made both men look round. Then Drummond bowed, to conceal a smile.

"Just in time, Miss Irma."

The girl swept past him and confronted Peterson.

"What has happened?" she panted. "The garden is full of people whom I've never seen. And there were two men running down the drive covered with weeds and dripping with water."

Peterson smiled grimly. "A slight setback has occurred, my dear. I have made a big mistake—a mistake which has proved fatal. I have underestimated the ability of Captain Drummond; and as long as I live I shall always regret that I did not kill him the night he went exploring in this house."

Fearfully the girl faced Drummond; then she turned again to Peterson.

"Where's Henry?" she demanded. "That again is a point on which I am profoundly ignorant," answered Peterson. "Perhaps Captain Drummond can enlighten us on that also?"

"Yes," remarked Drummond, "I can. Henry has had an accident. After I drove him back from the duchess' last night—the girl gave a cry, and Peterson steadied her with his arm—"We had words—dreadful words. And for a long time, Carl, I thought it would be better if you and I had similar words. In fact, I'm not sure even now that it wouldn't be safer in the long run. . . ."

"But where is he?" said the girl, through dry lips.

"Where you ought to be, Carl," answered Hugh grimly. "Where, sooner or later, you will be."

He pressed the studs in the niche of the wall, and the door of the big safe swung open slowly. With a scream of terror the girl sank half-fainting on the floor, and even Peterson's cigar dropped on the floor from his nervous lips. For, hung from the ceiling by two ropes attached to his arms, was the dead body of Henry Lakington. And even as they watched it, it sagged lower, and one of the feet hit sullenly against a beautiful old gold vase. . . .

"My God!" muttered Peterson. "Did you murder him?"

"Oh, no!" answered Drummond. "He inadvertently fell in the bath he got ready for me, and then when he ran up the stairs in considerable pain, that interesting mechanical device broke his neck."

"Shut the door," screamed the girl; "I can't stand it."

She covered her face with her hands, shuddering, while the door slowly swung to again.

"Yes," remarked Drummond thoughtfully, "it should be an interesting trial. I shall have such a lot to tell them about the little entertainments here, and all your endearing ways."

With the big ledger under his arm he crossed the room and called to some men who were standing outside in the hall; and as the detectives, thoughtfully supplied by Mr. Green, entered the central room, he glanced for the last time at Carl Peterson and his daughter.

Never had the cigar glowed more evenly between the master-criminal's lips; never had the girl Irma selected a cigarette from her gold and tortoise-shell case with more supreme indifference.

"Good-by, my ugly one!" she cried, with a charming smile, as two of the men stepped up to her.

"Good-by," Hugh bowed, and a tinge of regret showed for a moment in his eyes.

"Not good-by, Irma." Carl Peterson removed his cigar, and stared at Drummond steadily. "Only au revoir, my friend; only au revoir."

EPILOGUE.

"I simply can't believe it, Hugh." In the lengthening shadows Phyllis moved a little nearer to her husband, who, quite regardless of the publicity of their position, slipped an arm around her waist.

"Can't believe what, darling?" he demanded lazily.

"Why, that all that awful nightmare is over. Lakington dead, and the other two in prison, and us married."

"They're not actually in jail yet, old thing," said Hugh. "And somehow . . ." he broke off and stared thoughtfully at a man sauntering past them. To all appearances he was a casual visitor taking his evening walk along the front of the well-known seaside resort so largely addicted to honey-moon couples. And yet . . . was he? Hugh laughed softly; he'd got suspicion on the brain.

"Don't you think they'll be sent to prison?" cried the girl.

"They may be sent right enough, but whether they arrive or not is a different matter. I don't somehow see Carl picking oakum. It's not his form."

For a while they were silent, occupied with matters quite foreign to such trifles as Peterson and his daughter.

"Are you glad I answered your advertisement?" inquired Phyllis at length.

"The question is too frivolous to deserve an answer," remarked her husband severely.

"But you aren't sorry it's over?" she demanded.

"It isn't over, kid; it's just begun." He smiled at her tenderly. "Your life and mine . . . isn't it just wonderful?"

And once again the man sauntered past them. But this time he dropped a piece of paper on the path, just at Hugh's feet, and the soldier, with a quick movement which he hardly stopped to analyze, covered it with his shoe. The girl hadn't seen the action; but then, as girls will do after such remarks, she was thinking of other things. Idly Hugh watched the saunterer disappear in the more crowded part of the esplanade, and for a moment there came onto his face a look which, happily for his wife's peace of mind, she failed to notice.

"Let's go and eat, and after dinner I'll run you up to the top of the hotel."

Together they strolled back to their hotel. In his pocket was the piece of paper; and who could be sending him messages in such a manner save one man—a man now awaiting his trial? In the hall he stayed behind to inquire for letters, and a man nodded to him.

"Heard the news?" he inquired.

"No," said Hugh. "What's happened?"

"That man Peterson and the girl have got away. No trace of 'em."

Then he looked at Drummond curiously. "By the way, you had something to do with that show, didn't you?"

"A little," smiled Hugh. "Just a little."

"Police bound to catch 'em again," continued the other. "Can't hide yourself these days."

And once again Hugh smiled, as he drew from his pocket the piece of paper:

"Only au revoir, my friend; only au revoir."

He glanced at the words written in Peterson's neat writing, and the smile broadened. Assuredly life was still good; assuredly. . . .

And into an ash tray nearby he dropped a piece of paper torn into a hundred tiny fragments.

"Was that a love-letter?" she demanded with assumed jealousy.

"Not exactly, sweetheart," he laughed back. "Not exactly." And over the glasses their eyes met.

"Here's to hoping, kid; here's to hoping."

[THE END.]

PLINY CREDITED WITH YARN

Ancient Roman Said to Have Originated Remarkable Story Concerning Habits of Tiger.

According to Pliny, when a hunter wished to catch tiger cubs he must be provided with a very fleet horse, and have another in reserve. "When the tigress finds her lair empty she darts forth and tracks them by the smell. When she comes up to the hunter he throws one of the whelps to her, with which she returns to her lair. Then she rushes back, and he throws another to her; and this goes on till he reaches his ship."

Equally interesting is the account in the "Physiologus" which explains that "the hart desireth the water brook" because it had been inhaling the breath of dragons. So having filled its stomach from the brook, it drowns the dragon out of its hole and slays it with its antlers.

Uncorns seem to have given much trouble in those days, and were exterminated in a most unsportsmanlike fashion. "The hunters place a virgin near the spot where the unicorn has its abode. The unicorn, seeing her, runs and places its head in her lap, doing her no harm." This very natural action proves his undoing, for "then cometh the hunter and killeth it."

Here is the reverse of the picture: "But if she be not a pure maid the unicorn will not sleep, but killeth her." This legend is also carved at Chester, England.

CLOTHES MATCH OCCASION IN SCHOOL GIRL'S OUTFIT

THE school girl was never better provided for than she has been this fall with practical clothes to meet all her requirements. This is of course a satisfaction to her, but real joy is added to her satisfaction when she recognizes the smartness of the style that has been wrought into these practical belongings—style that gives her wardrobe the enviable flavor of youth.

In suits for the school girl simplicity and audacity are combined—and they are apt. For them skirts are short and coats take on small eccentricities. Frocks are also simple, but they manage to be other things—demure or gay. Sports clothes are sturdy and frolicsome—or matter-of-fact like the blousier suit shown in the picture for wear in the "gym."

For golfing, hiking or any strenuous sport, the knickerbocker suit is taken as a matter of course, both for the schoolgirl and her elders. It is made of rough woollens, in tan, gray or brown, with a sleeveless coat and often with a cape to match. There are smart but less spirited suits of tweed with plain skirts and mannish coats designed for the same kind of wear. Hats to match, or felt hats are worn with both.

For afternoon wear and for dancing there are many adorably pretty frocks for girls in their teens. Crepe and taffeta, ribbons and embroideries join forces in making them, and silhouettes vary, with the close-fitting bodice joined to a full skirt developed in taffeta and the slim silhouette taking advantage of the clinging quality of crepes.

THE TIME HAS COME TO CHOOSE A HAT

THERE is a pleasant little journey just ahead of most women. It is an excursion into the shops in quest of a trimmed hat for winter. Now is the time to make it—when milliners are putting their best hat forward, so to speak, in their formal openings; so—after checking up on one's bank account—the time has come to set sail. There is a becoming hat for every type of face. A group of trimmed hats shown above, reveals several favored and intriguing styles.

At the top of this group there is a representative of the small turban which proudly supports spreading bows or ends of crepe ribbon, finished off with a brilliant jet ornament at the front. It is handsome in velvet or duvetyne or other fabrics and is a tempting affair in all black. Just below it, a lovely velvet hat in a pleasant shade, has its crown covered with autumn foliage—browns, yellows, dull green, bronze—a little hint of red among the leaves. A circular veil in brown falls over it. The spirited hat at the right is made of velvet and bears an upstanding crest of ostrich which may be "platinized"—that is, metallized with a gray metallic finish, or in vari-colored ostrich plumes. It is very handsome in gray velvet with platinized ostrich. . . .

At the lower left, a velvet hat has a soft crown and graceful brim, in brown with long, soft ostrich plumes and curving spikes of chenille about its crown. It is also beautiful in the purple and petunia shades, or in other autumn colors. No collection will be minus something that calls to mind the Spanish modes and they are evident in the last hat of the group.

Have Everything Matched. Toiletries of one neutral color have become a sort of a fad. It is quite chic to have hat, shoes, dress, gloves—in fact, everything—matched.

Fashion Notes.

Inasmuch as fashion consists of what is being worn, it is notable that flower and fruit trimmed felt hats are to be seen everywhere, usually in bright colors. Cockades of narrow ribbon also trim the fronts of many hats.

A Hint to the Seamstress. In making buttonholes if the thread should break or prove too short put the needle through the slit to the wrong side and fasten. After threading the needle again insert it in the side of the last stitch, drawing the thread up through the last knot or purl and proceed as before. On heavy cloth and where shank buttons are used the end of the slit nearest the edge is rounded so the button will rest flatly in the buttonhole.

Wrist Cushion for Dressmaker. A wrist cushion instead of a wrist watch is a good idea for the home dressmaker. It should be small and tacked on a ribbon which snaps around the wrist.

"GOOD OLD DAYS OF GOLF"

Smollett Has Left Accounts of How the Staid Citizens of Edinburgh Amused Themselves.

"Hard by, in the fields called the Links, the citizens of Edinburgh divert themselves at a game called golf, in which they use a curious kind of bats tipped with horn, and small elastic balls of leather, stuffed with feathers, rather less than tennis balls but with a much harder consistency." is a statement found in Smollett's "Humphrey Clinker" (1771). "These they strike with such force and dexterity from one hole to another that they fly an incredible distance. Of this diversion the Scotch are so fond that when the weather will permit you may see a multitude of all ranks, from the senator or justice to the lowest tradesman, mingled together in their shirts, following the balls with the utmost eagerness. Among others I was shown a set of golfers, the youngest of whom was turned fourscore. They had all amused themselves with this pastime for the best part of a century, without having the least alarm from sickness or disgust; and they never went to bed without having each the best part of a gallon of claret in his belly."

Few Blind Men Smoke.

"The sense of sight is responsible to a great extent for the fascination in smoking," said the psychologist as he puffed on his cigar. "In fact, the senses of taste and smell come second to sight in deriving enjoyment from a good smoke. The greatest part of the pleasure a man has in smoking is seeing the smoke blow from his mouth and float in the air. I have noted that sightless men seldom smoke. I have asked many sightless men why they did not smoke, and they replied they could not derive much pleasure from it, as they could not see the smoke."

Money of Ancient Britons.

Sword-shaped bars of iron were used by the ancient Britons as money, and many of these are now found in British museums. A recent investigation shows that six different denominations were used, distinguished by their size.

LET U. S. SHAPE OWN POLICIES

MEMBERS of the Shipping Board declare that much of the opposition to the sale of the wooden ships at $2,100 each was due to British shipping interests who do not want to see the wooden ships put into commission thereby creating further competition. It is understood that the ships are to go to the Ship Construction and Trading Company of New York City. The price was discouragingly low, but it was necessary to rid the Government of the ships as they were costing a huge sum in upkeep. The fact that British interests were attempting to prevent the sale indicates how busy those interests are in this country in their attempt to discourage an American merchant marine. When the discussion of the Jones amendment to the tariff bill, providing for discriminatory rates on goods entering in foreign vessels, comes up for debate, these British interests will again be seen fighting it tooth and nail. And those interests must be beaten.

RESULTS OF CO-OPERATION

IN a small town in North Carolina a tent tabernacle was destroyed by a storm and the citizens of the town got together and built a wooden tabernacle, with a seating capacity of 1500, in one day. The tabernacle was used for a meeting the evening of that day. That shows what can be done when all work together. Now if the whole nation would go to work in the same spirit to pull this country out of the wreck following an industrial storm, the results would be just as remarkable and satisfactory.

KEEP THE PLEDGE

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mellon is absolutely right in urging that the excess profits taxes be repealed as of January 1, 1922. The Republican platform of 1920 pledged repeal of that form of tax, and the pledge should be kept.

PHILADELPHIA North American—Samuel Gompers insists he didn't say labor won the war; but it is noticed he hasn't reached the point of acknowledging anybody else did.

HAREMS ARE PASSING

Poverty and Need for House Room Causing Disappearance.

The Turkish harem is quickly passing as a part of the Turkish home. Poverty and the need for house room are the causes.

The Turkish pashas, offends, boys and all the well-to-do of other days, whose homes were divided into the harem and the haremlik—that is, one-half of the mansion or palace for the women and the other for the men—are parting with this luxury, as they have parted with their carriages, horses, jewels and lands. The pashas still keep a division of their houses for the privacy of their wives and daughters and children.

Many Turkish women deplore the necessity which compels them to live like the "poor European." They declare that they were happier when living apart, the home was easier to manage, and their husbands, too.

GOING TO CLAIM ESTATE

Farmer Came Here Years Ago in the Steerage.

Twenty-five years ago Charles J. Brown came to America a steerage immigrant.

Now he, his wife and his family of four children are returning to Sweden to take possession of the valuable Laggartorp estate, the ancestral home of the Browns, which is the old Swedish military name of the family.

Besides returning to a fortune in Sweden, Brown has acquired a comfortable sum in South Dakota. With winning and saving he paid for a farm near Slickney. Later he homesteaded a quarter section of land near Vivian, and still later added another quarter. He brought Mrs. Brown to America ten years ago. Brown has closed out all his property in South Dakota with the exception of his farm near Vivian.

Mysterious Band Smash London Panes
A mysterious band of men is causing great damage in London, England, by cutting and otherwise damaging plate-glass windows. The plate-glass windows ruined in the London area alone now total more than 2,500. The campaign has spread to other places in England.

A man never realizes how many pins go to waist until he snags his hand on two or three of them in somebody's waist.

After all there is no difference between being hit by the Love Bug and the Insanity Bug. They put a fellow in the same state of mental aberration and irresponsibility.

It's a hard world, mates. Ma nearly breaks her neck at hours for a stretch in the house and pa nearly breaks his neck for hours at a stretch in the street rubbing at the women's by churches. —Ansonville Times-Union.

Dynamite Aids Cupid

By HAZEL SMITH

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"It seems," said Evan Bruce, salesman, "that I have come to this dead end on a fruitless errand. Biddle & Co., quarrymen, have burned out, eh? Won't start up for sixty days. No train out for three hours. Suppose I go out to where he lives, and see if I cannot get an order out of him for future delivery?"

No sooner said than done. Just beyond the edge of a small stream running near a ravine he came upon a pretty country house. No one responded to continuous ringing of the door bell. Bruce was about to return townwards when he noticed the flutter of skirts near a pretty little cottage on the same lot.

It was pleasant to the tired traveler to meet Miss Verona Biddle and know that her father would return within an hour. It grew pleasant still as she invited Bruce to rest on a comfortable porch seat, which she shared with him.

"I was tidying up the cottage here, which my married brother and his family have occupied until today," she explained. "Papa has just driven them to the depot. It will be lonely for us, but brother's business called him to a new location."

It began to rain shortly, and they had to go into the house for shelter just as Mr. Biddle arrived and joined them. Bruce handed his business card to the bluff old quarryman.

"Dynamite, eh?" observed Mr. Biddle, reading the card. "Sorry I can't give you an order. I might have taken some for later use, but this big flood has done worse than the fire."

It continued to rain. Bruce lingered another hour. Mr. Biddle went out and studied the heavy clouds.

"See here," he said, "just make up your mind to stay with us over night."

Bruce glanced at the trim figure and charming face of his hostess and made no demur. He held an umbrella over Verona while they ran for the larger house. Then the deft little housekeeper busied herself preparing supper.

They had just concluded the evening meal when there came a harsh rapid jangle at the telephone. Mr. Biddle answered the call. He instantly dropped the receiver and ran for his hat.

"It's come!" he announced in a tone of deep concern—"the dam has broken and the flood is on. Can you help me a bit, Mr. Bruce?"

"Why, surely," acceded Bruce promptly.

The young salesman knew little about floods as he assisted his host in getting some cattle from the lowland meadows into the stables.

"We must be ready for a dash to the highlands if this grows worse," advised his host. "I've been through this before."

"Is it a question of the stream rising enough to reach the house?" inquired Bruce, with a speculative look in his eyes.

"Just that," was the positive response.

The young salesman returned to the house and took up his satchel. He had studied the contour of the surroundings and he knew his business.

Mr. Biddle and his daughter were standing on the porch wondering what had become of their guest. Ten minutes went by, then half an hour.

Crash—a terrific explosion rattled the windows of the house. As father and daughter stood petrified with amazement, Bruce came into view bearing the empty satchel in one hand, a battery apparatus in the other.

"Look at your creek now," he spoke in something of a tone of triumph.

"You are a practical man," was the comment of Mr. Biddle, as he did look and was told what had caused the water to recede.

"I simply blew out the ravine wall," explained Bruce. "The dynamite did it. There's a vent now that may fill up the ravine, but you won't have any flood hereabouts."

So practical a man was Bruce, indeed, that Mr. Biddle offered him the superintendency of his plant when he started up again.

So sensible was Bruce, that he proposed to Verona within a month, married her in two, and the pretty cottage had new occupants.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

To get away with flattery one must be pretty sharp.

Fortune doesn't always knock when a woman is having one of her at home days.

You never can tell. It isn't always the biggest man who looks down on his neighbors.

There isn't much hope for some of the parsons unless they practice better than they preach.

About the only people in the world who don't quarrel over religion are the people who haven't any.

Occasionally you come across a man in public life whose silence is so intense you can almost hear it.

Wigg—"Is there anything worse than running up against a bore?" Wagg—"Only having him run up against you."

Many an unhappy marriage can be traced to the fact that it is easier to tell a little lie than to answer a lot of questions.

Cheer up, girls. The young man's slave may also develop into an old man's darling if he sticks on the job long enough.

Muggins—"Mrs. Washaway, for a woman of her age, is very well preserved." Buggins—"Thereby illustrating that self-preservation is the first law of nature."

The Key That Unlocks The Door to Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

THE MILLER

By MOLLIE NEATHER.

When Gerry came to Aunt Phoebe's she looked the landscape over disappointedly. Gerry, in her own city home, was accustomed to the companionship of various cavaliers. Aunt Phoebe's resident village seemed destitute of this—in Gerry's opinion—necessary attention. Who would there be to drive her down the long inviting road? Who, to row her across the willow-bordered stream? The young women of the town appeared to be absurdly engaged in tiresome tasks—Gerry had come to play.

"Aunt Phoebe," she asked one morning, "do you know any nice young man who might care to pleasantly while away the time of my visit?"

Aunt Phoebe stared while her niece, with a little laugh, turned to the doorway. Evidently Aunt Phoebe had no suggestion to offer concerning her own summer-time amusement, so she would have to seek it herself.

The road to the mill looked inviting. Gerry happily followed that road. She had crossed, during her drive into town, the picturesque bridge over the rippling water. And she had, at the time, mentally resolved to inspect the old mill building, with its clean floors showing through the wide doorway.

The mill had been in disuse for some time, but bugs of grain were still sold there, and business carried on in a measure. Gerry thought that she might be able to get some good snap shots of the tiny waterfall over the cliffs. But she was all unprepared for the miller. When a young man popped his blond head out of an upper window, she found herself snapping him in the picture. It was provoking, though he was so very good looking, and his stare of pleased surprise at seeing her there would no doubt be registered too. Gerry could imagine the girls' jesting remarks when they saw the picture she had mailed them.

"Have you fallen in love with the miller of Dee?" Dot would probably ask, while the young man back home would probably joke concerning her new admirer. The snap was bound to be a good one.

"Good-by," said Gerry, with a smile to take the edge from her words, "I am much obliged and I shall not see you again."

The miller stopped to fasten his apron.

"All right," he remarked casually. "Glad to have met you. If you should care to come over here again and have the whole place to yourself come Thursdays. I always go in to the city that day."

Gerry walked on with mixed feelings. It was generous for the accommodating young man to take her rebuff this way. It was evident, however, that the rebuff had not touched him deeply; he was whistling. Gerry thought a good deal about the miller. It was silly, she told herself, and provoking—but she did. And when she had developed her snapshots she thought more about him than ever. It was the miller's wondering, pictured look, that impressed her. Almost, it seemed, that the sight of her had surprised him as one coming upon a looked-for friend. Gerry had been curiously aware of a like sensation as she had walked docilely at the young man's side. Well, if this was love at first sight, she would have none of it. Life as a village miller's wife did not fit at all in Gerry's future plan. She did go back to the mill on Thursday, to see if his cool suggestion had been entirely disinterested. It was; the young miller was nowhere to be seen. But between her Thursday visits—which became custom—Gerry met him frequently upon the village streets, or in the meeting house. There was always a mutual smile and word of recognition, but that was all; Gerry saw to it that there was no more. While she was now certain that she did not wish to marry Doctor Dan, and equally certain that pompous Bill would also have his refusal, Gerry was angrily determined that she was not going to allow herself to fall in love with a miller. Why, the very echo of that lovely stream brought to her, even now, a headache. And then—Gerry fell into that very stream. It was on Thursday and she was crossing at a shallow point on a slender board. The board keeled up treacherously, just as she was aiming her camera for a choice shot, and Gerry's white-shod heels showed for a moment above water. Then the miller fished her out. She was comfortably sure, in some way, that he would, even though it was Thursday and he expected to be in town. A white coat had been withdrawn hurriedly from the mill window as she approached. And when Gerry's wet figure was enfolded some time later in that same long white coat—and incidentally enfolded, also, in the miller's strong, confident arms, she looked at him reproachfully.

"I did not want to love you," said Gerry.

"As for that," the miller person sighed, "neither did I want to love you. What chance have I to marry with my profession still ahead and city rents so high, and this old rookery on my hands—grandfather willed the place to me and I had to come out to look it over."

The young man's tone was vastly troubled, his eyes were very sad. Gerry smiled.

"It wouldn't be such a bad place for us to live in summer time," she said, "and—later, rents may go down."

OBJECTION WOULD NOT LAST

Suitor More Than Willing to Remove Cause for Prospective Father-in-Law's Ill Will.

The two lovers were talking over their troubles, particularly the parental objections offered to their marriage. "But," said the youth, "I can't for the life of me see why your father should place any obstacle in the way of our marriage."

"Well," explained the girl after some reflection, "I think it stands this way: Father, you know, is always boasting of his lineage. He is forever saying that his ancestors were gentlemen of leisure like himself, and that you have to work for a living."

"Well," continued the suitor, "tell him that I don't expect to after we are married."

Do you discriminate at the dining table—or are you thoughtless?

In thousands of homes, a "line" is drawn at the breakfast table. Tea or coffee is served for "grown-ups" and Postum for children. But some parents do not discriminate. Caffeine and tannin, the injurious contents of coffee and tea, seriously retard the development of the delicate nerve tissues in children.

Consequently, instead of rich, satisfying Postum, children are overstimulated by the drugs in tea and coffee; and so may grow up irritable and nervous. Any doctor can tell you that this is a great evil and should be corrected.

Although some parents feel a certain justification for the personal indulgence in coffee, yet the harm to them may be equally serious. It may take a little while longer for the drugs in coffee and tea to affect

625,000 BOTTLES SOLD IN NEW YORK

Biggest Thing of Kind Ever Seen in That State, Declares Big Wholesaler.

The fact that 625,000 bottles of Tan-lac have been sold in the state of New York since its introduction there less than one year ago, is a big business item that will attract unusual attention throughout the entire East, for nothing like it has ever happened before. It breaks all records.

Mr. George B. Evans, manager of the Gibson-Snow Company, the well-known wholesale druggists, with branches in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, recently announced that the preparation was now selling in their trade territories alone at the phenomenal rate of approximately 500,000 bottles a year.

"If the present rate continues," said Mr. Evans, "this state alone will probably require considerably over 750,000 bottles a year. This is a tremendous figure, but I am really conservative in making this statement."

Tan-lac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

IN THE EYES OF THE LAW

Policeman's Stand Against Immodest Attire Would Seem to Be Somewhat Far-Fetched.

Two girls were crossing a Coney Island street. One had on a heavy, old-fashioned brilliantine bathing suit, with long skirt, high neck and elbow sleeves. The other was in street clothes. A policeman stopped them. "You!" he called to the bathing beauty, "you can't pass here dressed like that. Go back and put on some decent clothes!"

The girl looked down at herself, then up at the policeman and smiled. "Why, look at Mame!" she exclaimed, "what about her getting by?" The officer glanced at the other girl. She wore a filmy net waist, glaringly transparent, generously décolleté, and a skirt ending a few inches above her knees.

"But she is dressed," said the guardian of the law. "Now you go and put some clothes on or you can't pass here, see?"—Judge.

PUDDINGS AND PUDDING SAUCES

A tender, delicate, well-flavored steamed pudding is a dessert one enjoys any season of the year.

Plum Pudding.—Take one cupful of finely chopped suet, add one cupful of New Orleans molasses, sift three cupfuls of flour with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add to the first mixture alternately with one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of seeded and cut raisins, and one cupful of hickory nut meats. Enough of the flour should be reserved to dredge the raisins and nuts. Mix well and steam in a buttered mold three hours. Serve with any desired sauce—one of beaten egg flavoring and hot milk is especially good, sweetening to taste.

Chocolate Rice Pudding.—Sauté two cupfuls of milk; add one-fourth of a cupful of uncooked rice, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Cook until the rice is tender. Add one tablespoonful of butter, one-third of a cupful of sugar, one square of chocolate melted, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cupful of minced raisins and one-half cupful of shredded almonds. Cut and fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of two eggs, and one-half cupful of cream whipped. Pour the mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes. Spread with a meringue using a little vanilla flavoring. Brown in the oven.

Ginger Pudding.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter with one-half cupful of sugar; add one egg well beaten. Mix and sift two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour with three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of ginger; add alternately with one cupful of milk to the first mixture. Turn into a buttered mold, cover and steam two hours. Serve with a vanilla sauce.

Apricot Sauce.—Drain a can of apricots from their syrup and rub through a sieve. There should be three-fourths of a cupful of pulp. Add three cupfuls of whipped cream, sweeten to taste and serve on plain cottage pudding.

Coffee which makes the politician wise. For lo! the board with cups and spoons is crowned. The berries crackle and the mill turns round.

EVERY-DAY GOOD THINGS.

After the cool fall days have come, we turn to the succulent oyster which has not been so often on the menu.

Oyster Stew.—Put a pint of oysters in a colander and pour over them one-fourth of a cupful of water. Pick them over in the fingers carefully to remove any bits of shell and place the oysters in a stewpan. Heat three cupfuls of milk over hot water; strain into it the liquor from the oyster, add the oysters and cook until the edges curl and they are plump; season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a few dashes of pepper, add three tablespoonfuls of butter to the hot milk and bring to the boiling point; serve at once. Overcooking of oysters toughens them and ruins the flavor.

Meat Pie.—Use any cold-cooked meat except salted meat. Cut in small pieces, put into a baking dish and cover with a slightly thickened and seasoned gravy. Place over the heat while the crust is being prepared. To a pint of sifted flour add four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix thoroughly and work in three tablespoonfuls of butter. Add three-fourths of a cupful of milk or enough to make a soft dough. Spread this over the meat and bake in a hot oven until the crust is well done and browned on top.

Creole Croquettes.—Mix one cupful of beef from the top of the round or the end of a porterhouse steak, finely chopped with one-third of a cupful of uncooked rice. Season with two-thirds of a teaspoonful of salt, a little cayenne and white pepper. Mix well and add a heaping tablespoonful of this mixture in cabbage leaves that have been parboiled two minutes. Simmer one hour in tomato sauce. New pens may be ruined by overcooking and in cooking in a large amount of water which is thrown away with all the delicious flavor and growth principle as well as mineral salts. Pens should be cooked about twenty minutes or one-half hour in as little water as will keep them from scorching, then serve them, not draining off the water, with butter and cream or a white sauce as one pleases.

Net Lamp Shades. Lamp shades made of net are attractive in the room. For a living room select a colored silk for your foundation. Be careful to get some-thing that will give the note of brilliancy needed and yet will not cast an unbecoming light on the face of the guests. PELTRY HAS CALL

Fur to Adorn Suits and Coats as THE SILK SPORT SWEATER Collars, Cuffs, Borders.

Tricotine Suits for Early Wear With Moussine and Duvet de Laine for Winter.

Fabrics which have found especial favor for the fall season are represented in the collection of suits and coats now being shown. For early wear tricotine is a medium used to fashion suits, with moussine and duvet de laine for colder weather. Coats evidence a liking for panvelaine, moussine and bolivia. Fur is used to advantage on both suits and coats, forming collars, cuffs and borders.

A suit of corrento blue moussine shows the jacket trimmed with a blue fox collar and cuffs, the blue tones further accented in floss embroideries which describe arrow motifs at the bust and at the back form a panel showing greater width at the shoulders than at the hips. Finger-tip length jackets are highly favored.

A suit devoid of fur adornment, developed along more tailored lines, is also formed of moussine. An interesting treatment is noted in the back section of the jacket, where soft fullness above the waistline develops into strap treatments below the waistline. The treatment is reversed at the front, where strappings terminate in softly pouched pockets.

Coats in many instances feature the flat back and front with fullness introduced at the sides, an effect at once youthful and flattering. Panvelaine fashions a coat of this sort, the lower skirt section treated with a series of self cord tuckings which are repeated on the flare sleeves. A shawl collar of squirrel adds to the attractiveness of this number.

The wide flowing sleeve is advocated, one model showing a marked use of this mode being made of panvelaine. The sleeves are so cut as to be worn flying-open at the lower edge.

HOW THE NEW VEILS ARE WORN

Face Covering Floats Out and Hangs to Shoulders, Adding Gracefulness to Wearer.

How do you wear your veil? Inquires the New York Sun.

Do you pull a large meshed veil over your face so that the tip of your round-ended nose pushes through or the end of your pointed nose sticks out?

Do you pull the veil tightly across your forehead so that your eyelashes catch in it?

Do you always have an irritating little excess of veil under the chin that you repeatedly roll and twist into a little bunch to get it out of the way?

Do you get the veil on so that it draws in some places and sags in others?

Do you have trouble because the veil slips from around your hat down over your eyes, while it remains secure around your neck and chin?

Do you lose the ends at the back from their fastening and find them floating out in the winds of heaven behind you?

Of course if you follow the mode in veils you need do none of these things, for the really smart veil nowadays floats loosely at the back and is not held in at all, unless around the throat. Some of the new veils are made with little ruffs of feather or tulle or ribbon that fastens about the throat. Above this band the veil puffs and balloons and little effort is made to keep it taut and smooth.

Some of the new veils are exceedingly attractive. They are made so that they flare in almost circular shape from the small hats with which they are worn. They float out and hang to the shoulders and add much gracefulness to their wearers.

The tight, snug veil is often considered in Europe a typically American trick. That is to say, Europeans consider the American woman a past mistress at arranging the neat face veil.

SIMPLE CLOTHES BEST FOR GIRLS

Taste and Good Judgment in Selection of Materials and Having Things Match Is Essential.

Having small children attractively outfitted is not at all a question of having a lot of money to spend on their clothes. It is one of taste and good judgment in the selection of materials and in having things to match. Socks and hair ribbons, if ribbons are worn, should be bought to match the dress.

The question of school frocks confronts the mother of girls of school age, and many style suggestions are available.

Fortunately, children's clothes are not subject to very radical style change. For coming season there is a pronounced leaning to either very bright colors or black, and fabric combinations are approved as usual.

One little navy serge frock recently shown was smartly trimmed with yoke and bandings of bright red flannel, and a little navy crepe de chine had a bright yellow yoke and cuffs, a sash

The silk and wool jersey sport skirt continues popular. If, as illustrated, there is a new detail in the design, all the better. A black silk sweater completes the outfit.

The bodice section is cut full and straight and embroidered on the sleeves and back with self floss and gold metal thread. A round cord girdle marks the low waistline at the back with a self belt crossing the front and tying loosely.

Gray bolivia is chosen to fashion a coat trimmed with beaver. This is a full straight model with a band of the fur marking the low waistline. Self tucks of slender order emanate from the neckline in sunburst effect, and an interesting handling is seen in the sleeves cut with a deep armhole, the lower sleeve in ruffle form, the wrist belted with a band of the fur. A wide beaver collar finishes the neck.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Cape frocks are worn by both grown-ups and children.

Foulard dresses with narrow flower girdles are being worn.

An evening gown of black lace has a neck which is high in front and slopes to the girdle in back.

Petticoats are carefully fitted at the waistline so that there may be no extra bulk in unnecessary gathers.

Black crepe de chine dresses with monkey fur fringe in perpendicular rows from waist to hem are shown.

In the evening gowns, the soft round taffetas are preferred in the Empress Eugenie types with the long, slim bodice.

A sleeveless afternoon gown of taffeta worn with a pair of black fancy gauntlets and black ruch around your neck is mighty stylish.

Very up to date girls are wearing kid gauntlets generously embroidered, some in plain silks and beads, but mostly in steel. Very often these will sport upon the cuff the wearer's monogram.

Georgettes and laces, and now wraps of silk and lace, or silk voile and georgette have taken to their hearts linings of velvet, duvetyne and fur, thus upsetting our established notions as to material propriety.

It is one of taste and good judgment in the selection of materials and in having things to match. Socks and hair ribbons, if ribbons are worn, should be bought to match the dress.

The question of school frocks confronts the mother of girls of school age, and many style suggestions are available.

Fortunately, children's clothes are not subject to very radical style change. For coming season there is a pronounced leaning to either very bright colors or black, and fabric combinations are approved as usual.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 25REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT.—As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially them who are of the household of faith.—Gal. 6:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Gal. 6:10. PRIMARY TOPIC.—Stories of Paul. JUNIOR TOPIC.—Serving Jesus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Living for Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Sacrificing for Jesus.

Two methods may profitably be employed in the review of the lessons of the Quarter. First, a biographical sketch of the Apostle Paul, such as his birth, home training, education, conversation, teaching and missionary work. Second, the leading teachings of the lessons, which may be made prominent by summarizing the facts of each lesson and stating the most vital teaching thereof. The first method can be used in reviewing the lessons in all departments and grades, and can be easily adapted by any teacher. The second method will be preferred by many in the senior and adult classes.

The following is given by way of suggestion:

Lesson 1. Paul was born at Tarsus, of Hebrew parentage. Being brought up in a pious home, he was thoroughly imbued with the spirit of devotion to the Scriptures. He was educated at Jerusalem under the tutelage of Gamaliel. The chief text book was the Bible. In addition to his religious training he was taught a trade which came in very useful later, enabling him to support himself while preaching the gospel.

Lesson 2. In Paul's training as a Pharisee, he was taught to love his own nation, to love God's law, and to be zealous toward God, that is, to have a passion for God and His work. He was a very conscientious man. Conscience is the law of life for every man, but it needs to be regulated by God's word.

Lesson 3. Paul's burning hatred of Jesus incited him to endeavor to stamp out the Nazarene heresy. While on the way to Damascus, with authority to arrest and imprison the believers, men and women, he was stricken with blindness and fell to the earth, and Jesus spoke to him from heaven, saying, "Why persecutest thou me?" In response to the heavenly instruction he went to Damascus where Ananias baptized him, and he received his sight and was filled with the Holy Spirit.

Lesson 4. Paul straightway preached Christ in the synagogue. Like every one who is really converted he began to tell of the newly found Saviour. After a lengthy sojourn in Arabia he visited Jerusalem where he was befriended by Barnabas when suspected by the disciples.

Lesson 5. When the religious awakening at Antioch had come to the attention of the Jerusalem church, Barnabas was sent to inspect it, and seeing help was needed he brought Paul from Tarsus to be his helper. How important that there are men like Barnabas to bring forth from obscurity the men who are best qualified to do the Lord's work.

Lesson 6. After teaching a year at Antioch, the Spirit moved the church to send forth Barnabas and Paul to evangelize the heathen. The church sent their best men.

Lesson 7. As Paul and Barnabas were preaching at Iconium, an attempt was made to worship them as gods. Their efforts were frustrated by the fact of Paul. Soon after this Paul was stoned, showing that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate.

Lesson 8. Paul's preaching the grace of God to the heathen brought on a controversy in the church at Antioch. The question in dispute was: "Shall Gentiles be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation?" The decision was in favor of Paul, and so Paul and Barnabas were free to begin their second missionary journey.

Lesson 9. The Spirit forbade Paul to tarry longer in the provinces of Asia preaching the Gospel, and by a vision of a man from Macedonia pleading for help, he was called into Europe.

Lesson 10. The casting out of a demon from a young woman resulted in landing Paul and Silas in jail. They were miraculously delivered and the jailer was converted.

Lesson 11. Being driven out from Thessalonica and Berea, Paul went to Athens where he preached the gospel on Mars' Hill. The result of his preaching here was that some mocked, some procrastinated, and some believed.

Lesson 12. Paul in this lesson sets forth the grand principles which should govern the believer's life, the sum and substance of which is: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

A Prayer.
May I never wound the heart of any faltering child of Thine. Make me to do the little unremembered acts that quietly help without intending it. Grant me to bear about the unconcealed radiance of a life that knows no grudge, but loves all men because they are children of my Father, who loved them enough to send His Son to save them. Amen.—Rev. Samuel McComb, D. D.

The Hope of His People.
The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining. The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake; but the Lord will be the hope of His people.—Joel 2:15 and 16.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. Circulars free. All Druggists. WOMEN WHO CANNOT WORK

Read Mrs. Corley's Letter and Benefit by Her Experience

Edmund, S.C. — "I was run down with nervousness and female trouble and suffering almost every month."

I was not able to do any work and tried a lot of medicine, but got no relief. I saw your medicine advertised in a little book that was thrown in my door, and I had not taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I could see it was helping me. I am keeping house now and am able to do all of my work. I cannot say enough for your medicine. It has done more for me than any doctor. I have not paper enough to tell you how much it has done for me and for my friends. You may print this letter if you wish. —ELIZABETH C. CORLEY, care of A. P. Corley, Edmund, S.C.

Ability to stand the strain of work is the privilege of the strong and healthy, but how our hearts ache for the weak and sickly women struggling with their daily rounds of household duties, with backaches, headaches, nervousness and almost every movement brings a new pain. Why will not the mass of letters from women all over this country, which we have been publishing, convince such women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help them just as surely as it did Mrs. Corley?

GOOD ROADS AID PROSPERITY

Instance Cited of Virginia Community Where Great Progress Has Been Accomplished.

That good roads are closely related to prosperity there is no question of doubt. Only a few years ago this section of Virginia had but one macadam road, one creamery, which went to the wall, and a mere handful of pure-bred dairy cattle, writes C. C. Conger, Jr., of Virginia in the Practical Farmer. One not familiar with the many blessings good roads bring about might wonder in what way good roads would affect creameries and pure-bred cows. Let us take, for instance, Rockingham county, and see just what good roads did in this section in the dairy business alone, to say nothing of the prosperity good roads brought about in various other ways. Previous to our good roads the one creamery did some business during the summer months, when the dirt roads were at their best, but business dwindled to nothing during the winter months because farmers could not get over the roads to deliver their milk. The creamery finally closed down for the lack of milk. About this time a mere handful of progressive farmers began a movement for better roads, calling a meeting at a little village centrally located in the county. The attendance was good, and a great deal of "good roads" enthusiasm was aroused. It was the first step in better roads that gained impetus by leaps and bounds. Today, in a few short years, we have a network of fine macadam roads throughout the entire county. Following good roads came creameries. They sprang up over night like mushrooms, till today the county is dotted with creameries, the sight of which does not look much like closing down for the lack of milk, particularly during the early hours of the day, when auto trucks are pouring in from the country, bringing milk from every nook and corner of the county. Pure-bred cows came with the creameries, till today scrub stock no longer dominates our farms. Ask any farmer why he disposed of his scrub cows, replacing them with pure breeds, and he will tell you the creameries did it.

ROAD MARKERS AID TOURISTS

Trunk Highways Designated by Number to Correspond With One on Official Map.

Since the adoption of a standardized system of highway markers by the state of Wisconsin, five other states and England have followed the model plan. Each of the state trunk highways is designated by number to correspond to the number on the official road map. Markers have been placed at close intervals carrying the number shown on the map, making it easy for the tourist to reach the most remote villages in the state.

AUTHORITY ON ROAD TRAFFIC

William Phelps Eno, Graduate of Yale College, is an Expert on Highways.

William Phelps Eno of Washington, D. C., a graduate of Yale college, in the class of 1882, is an authority on highway traffic regulations, having been closely identified for many years with the working out of the traffic problem in large cities in various parts of the world.

Easier to Handle Animals. Kindness and quietness while handling and working around the animals will accomplish more in making them obedient and easily handled than strong arm, fog horn tactics.

Sell the Old Hens. Hens that are no more than one or two years old are all right. They will still do good service as layers, and as breeders are probably better property than pullets.

DAIRY POINTS

WAR AGAINST CATTLE TICKS

United Effort Being Made in Georgia to Eradicate Little Blood-Sucking Parasites.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cattle ticks are fighting a losing battle in Georgia this year. The attempted invasion is being effectively suppressed by the co-operative efforts of federal, state and county employees, working with the stock raisers. The famous battle cry, "They shall not pass!" has been revised in the light with the blood-sucking parasites to "They shall not live!" for a united effort is being made to eliminate the last tick in a number of counties in the state.

There are in operation in Georgia 3,291 dipping vats, in which cattle are immersed every 14 days. Dipping began early in the spring, the time when the most effective results in tick eradication are obtained. During March approximately half a million cattle splashed through the dipping vats in the state. The April reports show that 833,434 cattle were dipped under federal, state and county supervision. This is a very good record, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, when it is considered that Georgia is essentially a cotton-growing state and that the cattle industry has been neglected on account of the handicaps presented by the presence of ticks.

Now all cattle that have been dipped in Georgia are marked with paint, and this plan has given very satisfactory results in getting to the dipping vats animals pastured on the open range that might otherwise miss regular dipping. The use of range riders, whose duty it is to search for and dip cattle that are not marked, was considerably increased during April.

In Georgia, as in all other southern states where the fight against cattle ticks has been waged, there is always more or less opposition to the tick-eradication movement. Recently a meeting was held in one Georgia town for the purpose of protesting against the further dipping of cattle in the county. A progressive farmer who had experienced unsatisfactory results in raising cattle under tick conditions read a notice of this meeting of protest and immediately wrote a letter to the president of the bank in the town in which the meeting was held in this letter he said:

"Noticing in the newspapers that your people meet opposition in tick eradication, I desire to express my belief that the cattle tick was the source of infection, the only cause of bovine fever, I brought many registered Jersey dairy cattle to Putnam county, middle Georgia. Later I immigrated the northern cattle by transshipping blood from cows carrying ticks to the susceptible northern-bred cattle."

"While the treated cattle did not subsequently die of cattle fever, the process proved harmful to the growth and development of the animal whose life was saved. When the history of the deadly tick became fully known, tick eradication justly took precedence over any treatment. Its ease of accomplishment, its economy and beneficial results that followed all emphasized its necessity to any community that desires to raise cattle."

"In our part of the state no man, no matter how unreasoning and bitter his opposition to tick eradication when we needed his moral support, can now be found who does not fully approve the work. No argument should carry more weight than the full endorsement and approval of opponents when they see the whole truth, and change from opposition to advocacy."

"Surely we who have bred cattle under tick infestation, and later after tick eradication, are entitled as mis-sionaries to endeavor to benefit others who have never been without the disadvantage of the pest."

REST COWS BEFORE CALVING

Erroneous to Believe That Animals Cannot Be Dried Up for Necessary Rest Period.

Dry off your good cows and give them a rest of eight to ten weeks before calving. It will do them good. Some cows have a tendency to milk nearly up to the date of freshening, and it is often a belief that they cannot be dried off for a sufficient rest period. Expert herdsmen, however, find that no injury results from drying up a cow which gives as much as five to eight quarts daily, if one milking a day is omitted for several days and the animal then partly milked out after skipping an entire day.

Files and Milk. Take your choice between dies and milk; the energy a cow uses when badly pestered with flies can't go into milk production.

Machines Are Success. The milking machines have proven themselves a great success wherever they have been given a fair trial.

Call Takes Milk Often. Under natural conditions the calf takes its milk frequently and in small quantities.

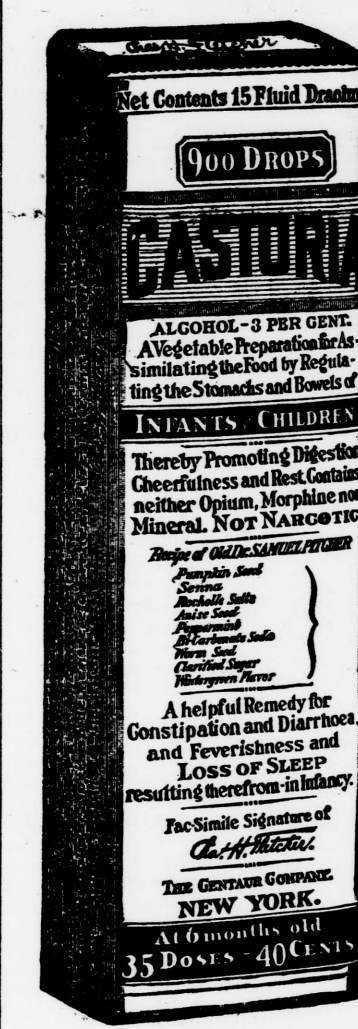

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

"For goodness' sake, be still." Imagine their surprise, amusement and also embarrassment when after a lively ensemble, "Sister," who had been shrieking in glee, clapped her hands, and while the whole audience turned to see, shrilled:

"Oh, this is a real show 'cause it's got pretty girls and they sing and dance."—Indianapolis News.

Quite as Good. A farmer recently paid a visit to a neighbor, and as he passed along by the side of the fields he made a mental note of the fact that no scarecrows were visible.

Meeting the neighbor almost immediately he opened conversation as follows:

"Good morning, Mr. Oates. I see you have no scarecrows in your fields. How do you manage to do without them?"

"Oh, well enough," was the innocent reply. "You see, I don't need them, for
